

Important Information- Petition for Independent Status

Financial aid regulations assume that the family has primary responsibility for meeting the educational costs of students. If you are considered a dependent student according to the financial aid definition, your aid eligibility is determined by using parent income and asset information in addition to your information. Dependent students are required by law to provide parental information and signatures to be considered for financial aid.

For federal student aid programs, Tulane follows the definition of an independent student as set by the United States Congress. The Free Application for Federal Student Aid contains more details on the criteria. Documentation may be required. Under the definition, an undergraduate student is considered independent for 2020 - 2021 if he or she:

- is born before January 1, 1997.
- since turning age 13, was in foster care, a ward or dependent of the court and/or an orphan (both parents deceased).
- is a veteran of the United States Armed Forces or currently serving on active duty in the U.S. Armed Forces for purposes other than training.
- is married or separated.
- is providing significant financial support to dependents other than a spouse.
- is determined by a court in the state of legal residence as being an emancipated minor or in legal guardianship.
- on or after July 1, 2019, was deemed to be a homeless unaccompanied youth or self-supporting and at risk of being homeless.

Federal regulations allow financial aid administrators to use professional judgment to change dependency status to "independent" on a case-by-case basis. The student must demonstrate that there is an unusual circumstance other than the fact that the student is self sufficient or that the parents are unwilling to contribute to the student's education. If you do not meet any of the above criteria but you believe that you should be considered independent because of truly exceptional circumstances making it inappropriate to expect a parental contribution, you may complete this form to petition for a waiver of federal regulations requiring parental information. Examples of unusual circumstances are situations such as when a student's parents cannot be located, or where an otherwise dependent student has been a victim of domestic violence or abuse and is no longer able to reside with his or her parents.

The U.S. Department of Education has identified four conditions that, individually or in combination with one another, do not qualify as "unusual circumstances" and do not merit a dependency override. Those circumstances are:

- Parents refusing to contribute to the student's education;
- Parents unwilling to provide information on the application or for verification
- Parents not claiming the students as a dependent for income tax purposes
- Student demonstrating total self-sufficiency.

4. You must show that you have not been living with your parents and have not been claimed by your parents for the past two years. Please provide documentation/ statements from three sources who are aware of your situation and who know that you have not had any contact with your parents. Only one of the three
